

Wildlife

La Dispute

La dispute is a post hardcore band from Michigan. Jordan Dreyer is the vocalist, Brad Vander Lugt plays the drums, Chad Morgan-Sterenbergh plays guitar and bass guitarist Adam Vass.

Wildlife is their second studio album, released October 4th 2011. The band was praised by critics for their deep, hard lyrics in their songs from this album.

Their lyrics in the wildlife album seem to be inspired by sadness, hard times and things about their old home lives.

“King park”, one of their most famous songs, is about a shooting that accidentally killed a child. The lyrics and story that is told in the song is sad and dark.

<http://www.azlyrics.com/lyrics/ladispute/kingpark.html>

They could've kicked in the door but knew the gun was still with him,
One he'd already used and so they feared what he'd do.
I floated up through the window of a room to the West.
I hovered out to the hallway, tried to listen in.
I heard them trying to reason, get him to open the door.
His uncle begging and pleading, half-collapsed to the floor.
He preached of hope and forgiveness,
Said, "There is always a chance to rectify what you've taken, make your peace in the world."
I thought to slip through the door, I could've entered the room,
I felt the burden of murder, it shook the earth to the core.
Felt like the world was collapsing. Then we heard him speak,
"Can I still get into heaven if I kill myself?
Can I still get into heaven if I kill myself?
Can I ever be forgiven 'cause I killed that kid?
It was an accident I swear it wasn't meant for him!
And if I turn it on me, if I even it out, can I still get in or will they send me to hell?
Can I still get into heaven if I kill myself?"
I left the hotel behind, don't want to know how it ends.

Wildlife La Dispute

LA DISPUTE

IT'S PERFECTLY OK,
I'M AFRAID, TOO

La Dispute
Wildlife

"King Park"

SOARING HIGH AND HIGH

By Destiny Kelley

